

Short-term Fellowships at the Center „Finance & Inequality“

We invite established scholars in empirical and theoretical macroeconomics to spend a period of time in residence at the University of Bonn – Center for Advanced Studies “Finance & Inequality” (www.casfi.uni-bonn.de). The fellow is expected to interact with faculty and researchers, present work at our workshops, actively participate in workshops and conferences, and conduct economic research in the fields finance and / or inequality.

Fellowships have a duration of 3 to 6 months. Recipients receive a monthly fellowship of €3,000 to €5,000, depending on experience, to cover the additional living costs for a stay in Bonn. Moreover, we also reimburse reasonable travel expenses incurred for the trip to Bonn and the trip home at the end of the scholarship.

A work space will be provided.

In the newly founded Center for Advanced Studies “Finance & Inequality” (CASFI), led by Carsten Burhop (Economic history) and Christian Bayer (Economics), a number of early career and established researchers will come together to explore the broadly defined topic finance and inequality that also leaves them scope for their individual research ideas. In particular, researchers are looking at the multiple relationships between the macroeconomy, the financial sector, and inequality both from a historical and a contemporary empirical and theoretical perspective.

How to apply:

Applicants should hold a PhD and at least two years of independent research experience by the time of the start of the fellowship.

To apply for the fellowship please submit the following:

- a cover letter,
- a CV, and
- a brief ( $\leq 1$  page) statement about the research you plan to conduct and the indicative period they would like to spend at CASFI during the academic year 2025/26.

The application should be sent via email to: casfi@uni-bonn.de no later than September 15, 2025. Decisions will be made as soon as possible. For further details, please feel free to contact christian.bayer@uni-bonn.de
